Canada

- The S&P/TSX Composite increased 0.55% on the week led by an increase of 5.18% in the Health Care sector.
- The Bank of Canada left its key interest rate at a historic low and maintained its current pace of bond purchases last week. The central bank was among the first from advanced economies to shift to a less expansionary policy in April, when it accelerated the timetable for a possible interest-rate increase and pared back its bond purchases.
- Statistics Canada says manufacturing sales fell 2.1% to $57.1 billion in April as the auto industry was hurt by a continued shortage of semiconductor chips that prompted companies to halt or slow production. However, manufacturing sales excluding the transportation equipment industry rose 1.5% in April.

United States

- The S&P/500 Composite increased 0.41% on the week.
- Prices paid by US consumers rose 0.60% in May, the second-largest advance in more than a decade. Though distorted by the pandemic, the CPI jumped 5% from a year ago, the largest annual gain since August 2008, according to Labor Department data. The CPI report showed steady growth in the costs of used vehicles, household furnishings, airfares and apparel.
